Namibia's mining and heavy industrial sectors are high-stakes environments. Teams face relentless pressure in ensuring continuity of production: unplanned breakdowns that halt output, reactive maintenance cycles that drain budgets, hidden inefficiencies that erode margins, underperforming assets that slow production, with stretched internal resources trying to manage it all.

Okuni Africa exists to change that reality. As a 100% female Namibian-owned engineering and technical services company, we position ourselves as a business performance partner.

We're not just another contractor or supplier; we work alongside your teams as an extension of their capacity, providing managed technical support, practical site execution, and one clear point of accountability to protect production, reduce operational pressure, and drive measurable improvements in reliability, efficiency, and profitability.

What Sets Us Apart

- ⚙️ Client-first outcomes: We start with your biggest pressures, such as downtime, risk, cost escalation, and readiness gaps and then apply engineering-led solutions that deliver real business value.
- ⚙️ Managed execution and accountability: From planning through to handover, we own the details so your leadership and teams can focus on core operations.
- ⚙️ Commissioning readiness expertise: We coordinate technical teams, manage handover risks, and support smooth transitions into stable production, providing a key strength for new mines, expansions, and ramp-ups.
- ⚙️ Local capability with proven expertise: Deep practical experience in mechanical engineering, electrical, instrumentation, reliability engineering, automation & control systems, SCADA development, PLC programming, reporting dashboards, maintenance optimisation, shutdowns, spares management, and technical project coordination.
- ⚙️ Values-driven partnership: Built on respect, servant-based leadership, purpose-driven passion, ownership, and lifelong learning, we are committed to building sustainable value in Namibia's mining and industrial ecosystem.

We do not replace your internal teams. We strengthen them, bringing additional focus, structure, skills, and disciplined execution. The result is greater confidence in operations, reduced risk, better asset performance and improved bottom-line outcomes.

Okuni Africa is proud to be a Namibian success story, helping local mining and heavy industrial clients turn operational challenges into competitive advantages through a trusted, engineering-driven partnership.

We help you produce more, spend less, and reduce risk.
